The Canadian Red Cross has developed a Can$35 million integrated health program in the Southeast Department, which aims to improve access to quality health services for mothers and children and strengthen communities in terms of community-based health and first aid. The program has four main components:

1) Improved community health education

Red Cross health awareness activities reaching approximately 10,000 households per month on the following subjects:

- family planning
- hygiene and sanitation
- violence prevention
- diarrhea and malaria prevention
- first aid

2) Health centres

Construction of a community health centre (Gaillard) and expansion of three rural clinics into health centres (Marbial, Lafond, Séguin). Residents of rural communities will have access to healthcare without needing to travel long distances.

3) Saint-Michel Hospital reconstruction, equipment purchase, and personnel training

See reverse for details

4) Strengthening of public health institutions at the departmental and community levels

Increased monitoring, planning, and organizational capacities, as well as service management and public health programs.

THE NEW SAINT-MICHEL HOSPITAL IN JACMEL AN EARTHQUAKE-RESISTANT FACILITY IN HARMONY WITH ITS ENVIRONMENT

Rebuilding the only public departmental hospital in the Southeast is a vital step in ensuring the community's long-term recovery. With its sustainable construction, newly purchased equipment, and personnel training, the Saint-Michel Hospital could become referral hospital.
